Helen Carey, 24, of Gettysburg R. 1, suffered a fractured left leg and brush burns at 6:50 o'clock Saturday night in a collision between automobiles operated by Raymond Edgar Shealer, 31, Gettysburg R. 4, and Lloyd W. Ecker, 50, also of Gettysburg R. 4. She was a passenger in the Shealer car. Mr. Shealer suffered a laceration of the left eyelid and body bruises.

State police said the accident occurred on the Harrisburg road a mile and a half north of Gettysburg, when the two cars were passing. Shealer was traveling north and Ecker was going south. Police said the Shealer car crossed the center of the highway and struck the Ecker automobile. Damage to Shealer's car was estimated at $50 and to the Ecker car at $250.

F. Myers, 29, of Kingston, Pa., according to state police.

Automobiles operated by John Ira Herman, 31, of Gettysburg R. 4, and Eugene P. Etter, 27, of Fayetteville R. 2, figured in an accident on the Lincoln highway at Granite station intersection 3.7 miles east of Gettysburg at 10:10 o'clock Saturday night, state police said.

REPORT THEFT IN COUNTY HOME

Adams county is having its share of novel news stories.

Some time ago the county jail was burglarized. Last week a Gettysburg fire truck caught fire, and now comes the story, from state police of the Gettysburg substation, that the poorhouse, otherwise known as the Adams county home, had a robbery on June 10. It was not reported for several days, police said.

Harvey Hoffman, 85, one of the home residents, told police that he had $65 in a wallet. The money had been presented to him by relatives. "To pay some bills," he told police. Hoffman went to the men's room in the south building on June 10, and said the wallet fell out of his pocket. He picked it up and placed it on a windowsill, meaning to return it to his pocket later. He walked out without it and went to supper.

Later when he went back to the men's room to retrieve the wallet, he found it back of the commode. Only $30 of the $65 he said he had in the wallet was left, he told investigating officers. Relatives confirmed the fact that he had the money. The usual custom of inmates who have money is to have it placed in the safe for them. Hoffman carried his in his wallet. Police are investigating.

Judge Sheely Speaks Sunday At Dedication Of Plaque

The photograph above shows the two bronze plates bearing the Ten Commandments in abbreviated form that were dedicated Sunday afternoon in front of the court house. (Gettysburg Times Photo)

A bronze plaque bearing the Ten Commandments, placed on the front of the court house here, was dedicated Sunday afternoon before a group of about 300 as part of the program of the 52nd annual convention of the Adams County Council of Christian Education.

Judge W. C. Sheely, in the principal talk given at the dedication, said: "As living conditions have become more complex, it has become necessary for man to adopt more and more detailed rules of conduct and regulation of his daily life, yet none of those rules and regulations has any validity except it be based upon the moral code of the Ten Commandments. No law can be sanctioned which is not in accord with the fundamental law of God."

"Since the reason of man is corrupt, it is necessary that the precepts of the code be spelled out in detailed instructions. Man is always trying to improve his conditions. As old evils become more prevalent, the public insists on new laws. But the plain truth is that good morals and clean living cannot be legislated. They come not from legislation, but from the hearts of each of us."

Laws Rule World

Noting that "whether we realize it or not our lives, our world, the universe are governed by laws," Judge Sheely added, "All that we are, all that we do, all that we see about us, is governed in some way. Without law we would have chaos. The world could not exist without the elements being governed and regulated."

"When God created the world He ordained the laws whereby it should be governed. Vegetable and animal life are governed by fixed and invariable laws which those creatures must obey since their very existence depends on that obedience. The

Vast Explosive Power On Hand For U.S. Air Force

Washington, June 18 (AP)—Military planners say the U. S. Air Force now has available to it explosive power greater than all the explosives from the invention of gunpowder to the atomic attack on Hiroshima.

These officials, who may not be named, told a reporter today that if the Soviets choose war, the U. S. can hurl down on Russian cities, people and armies destruction frightful beyond comprehension.

Unfortunately, only a relatively few men, none of them Russian, understand the power the U. S. has shape into its atomic weapons, air force and sea service.

Nor does there seem a way, except for the politically dangerous demonstration of dropping a simple bomb on the Communist enemy in Korea, to convince Russia of this power of retaliation.

What It Means
American officials, from the highest levels down, have been speaking publicly for five years of the "deterrent" effect of the atomic bomb on Russian aggression plans. Because the phrase has been used so often, with so little elaboration, its meaning has worn thin. Moreover, it is quite likely the phrase came into existence before the real power was attained. But now officials who make the statement aren't bluffing the Russians. They are telling them.

Military men who must make the plans for any retaliation say the U. S. Strategic Air Command now has available explosive power greater than all the man-made blasts before Hiroshima, in 1945.

transition from seed to plant to fruit and again to seed is the law of nature and cannot be changed.

"Man was created in God's own image and was given the divine gifts of reason and free will which were not bestowed upon any other of God's creatures. But considered as a creature, man must be subject to the laws of his Creator, for he is still an entirely dependent being. A being which is entirely independent of any other has no law to follow except such as he himself ordains. But when he is dependent on another that dependence always creates an obligation upon the inferior to take the will of the superior as his rule of conduct, and since man is absolutely dependent upon his Maker for everything, it is necessary that he comply in all things to his Maker's will."

Determines Happiness

"Man was created with reason and free will. This makes it necessary that he be governed in his human affairs by laws in addition to those which govern all creation. God therefore laid down certain immutable laws of good and evil and of justice by which He himself is governed and which He has enabled human reason to discover, so far as necessary for the conduct of human affairs. But He has not left it entirely to reason to discover these truths."

"He has so intimately connected the laws of eternal justice with the happiness of each individual that you cannot have happiness without observing the laws of eternal justice and you cannot obey the laws of eternal justice without finding happiness."

"The Ten Commandments were handed down to Moses on Mt. Sinai because 'passion had clouded (Continued on Page 7)

Outnumbered Yank Sabre Jets Destroy 6 Red Planes; Damage 8 More In Two Air Battles

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

Tokyo, June 18 (AP)—Outnumbered American Sabre jets destroyed six Russian-type jets and damaged eight others in two big air battles over Korea yesterday and today.

A total of 118 planes were involved in the sudden revival of jet warfare.

Sixteen Red jets made a third stab at four Sabre jets Monday afternoon—but kept at a safe distance. They fired twice on the F-86s, then streaked back across the Yalu river into the safety of Manchuria.

See New Offensive
All American planes returned safely, Far East Air Forces said. Reappearance of the Red jets in force coincided with indications the Chinese may be preparing a new ground offensive.

Red troops suddenly appeared in territory they had previously deserted. Replacements steadily filtered down from the north for holding troops all along the front.

Fierce Red defenses checked Allied moves in the center of the line. But Allied patrols Monday drove more than three miles into Red territory in the west and gained slightly over a mile in the east.

Yank Tanks On Patrols
Two U. N. armored tank patrols rumbled up the west side of the former Red "iron triangle," shooting at small Communist bands on the way. Another armored patrol trying to push up the east side from Kumhwa was forced back by road mines and mortar fire.

Small fights broke out all along the west and center. A briefing officer said Reds were still fighting a delaying type of warfare. In the east, North Korean machinegun fire three times drove U. N. troops back from a commanding ridge line, but Reds suddenly abandoned another ridge for which they had fought fiercely Sunday.

Fighter-bombers raked every strong point as the Fifth Air Force mounted 490 sorties in daylight Monday, including the jet fights along the northwestern Korean border.

20 Yank Jets In Fight
F-86 pilots reported the Red jets showed more fight than ever before in the two air battles. The fight was gone in the later, long-distance passes. The two jet battles flared suddenly after a long lull.

Monday's was the bigger and took the heaviest toll of the Reds—five destroyed and two damaged. It was the biggest battle in two months. Thirty-three Sabre jets battled with 40 MIGs from 28,000 feet down to tree top level.

Sunday's air fight was between 29 American jets and 25 Reds. One MIG was reported shot down and six damaged.

Both battles were fought near the Manchurian border in MIG alley—site of all previous jet engagements.

The ground war moved over familiar territory, but stirred up strong Red resistance in unexpected spots. In the center five Allied patrols were turned back by strong Red fire. Communists moved artillery into the "iron triangle" where none was encountered recently.

BREAK GROUND FOR NEW CHURCH AT BIGLERVILLE

Ground was broken at Biglerville Sunday for the new $65,000 Centenary EUB church, following the regular morning worship service in the old church at 11 o'clock. The first shovelful of earth was turned by J. Hoke Slaybaugh, chairman of the building committee, in the presence of 171 members of the congregation.

The ceremonies were held adjoining the church, following a procession headed by the pastor, Rev. Lawrence E. Rohrbaugh, and members of the committee. Following the singing of two hymns, prayer was offered by Rev. Rohrbaugh. Mr. Hoke used a special spade, nickel-plated with a gold-plated handle, which will be placed in a glass case in the new church when it is completed. The spade was contributed by Mr. Slaybaugh, whose father was one of the prime movers in the erection of the old church in 1874. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Rohrbaugh.

The Centenary church recently purchased an additional 40 feet of land adjoining the present edifice on North Main street, and the old church will be torn down to make way for the new structure. Work is expected to begin on the new church June 25, and should be completed by December 1. During building operations, services will be held in the Biglerville community hall.

140-Seat Auditorium
The church auditorium will measure 34 by 52 feet, facing west, with the chancel on the street side facing east. There will be three Sunday school rooms at the rear, and other Sunday school rooms on the north side. The church and Sunday school rooms will be entered from the north side by way of a sidewalk and doors leading into the bell tower. The church auditorium will seat 140, and the Sunday school rooms at the rear an additional 70 persons. There will be no partition between the auditorium and these three rooms.

The beginners and other rooms will be located in the part of the (Continued on Page 2)

COMMUNISTS LOSING MANY FRENCH SEATS

Paris, June 18 (AP)—Gen. Charles De Gaulle's new party appeared on the way today to being the strongest single political unit in France's new National Assembly, but the middle of the road parties seemed to be retaining control of the next Parliament.

With three quarters of the vote in yesterday's national elections tabulated, De Gaulle's rally of the French People (RPF) had won 107 Assembly seats and had run up an impressive total of 3,137,599 votes of the 15,000,000 counted up to noon in unofficial tabulations.

In terms of popular vote the Communists still were out in front, but the Red party was losing many seats. At the three quarter mark the Communists had 96 seats and seemed on the way to losing as many as 60 of the seats they held in the old Parliament. But in popular vote the Communists were out in front as a single party, with 3,844,729, or 25.76 per cent of the 15,000,000 votes counted up to noon. This was a little behind their popular vote showing in the last election in 1946, when their vote was 28.6 per cent of the total.

Center Parties Rule
Despite De Gaulle's strong showing in this election, watched throughout the world as one aspect of the East-West war of ideas, his party did not appear to be running up the total in Assembly seats which it had expected.

The Center parties whose coalition ruled the nation since 1946, to the exclusion both of the De Gaulleists and the Communists, had a better than even chance of keeping that control in Parliament in a similar combine.

With 15,000,000 of the 20,000,000 votes cast yesterday — the total eligible to vote was 24,600,000 — the unofficial returns showed (627 Assembly seats at stake): the Communists had 96 seats and 3,844,749 votes; the De Gaulleists, 107 seats and 3,137,599 votes; the Socialists, 96 seats and 2,356,362 votes; the MRP (Popular Republicans) 77 seats and 1,818,839 votes; the Left Republicans, 85 seats and 1,565,236 votes; the latter three parties, along with some independents, make up the coalition. The independent parties and the Peasants party had cornered about 100 seats at the three-quarter mark.

BEN HOGAN WINS J. S. OPEN THIRD TIME IN 4 YEARS

Birmingham, Mich., June 18 (AP)—He had chosen a career of golf instead of golf. Ben Hogan won the J. S. Open third time in four years.

For that reason the 38-year-old former caddy from North Worth, Tex., is more firmly entrenched to-day as king of golf.

Here is one of the great all-time competitors in sports. He is a bull-dog. He has nothing but contempt for odds.

Last Saturday he won the U.S. Open championship, the greatest test of them all, for the third time in four years. Actually it's the same as three in a row since he missed 1949 because of an automobile accident which was expected to sideline him for keeps.

At the same time—and what he said gave him the greatest satisfaction—he handed old trap-infested Oakland Hills, the course nobody could beat, a shelling it will remember forever.

Hogan himself gave a good insight into his battling nature while chatting with newsmen after his Oakland Hills triumph.

"Somebody said I'll probably lose my incentive now that I've won the open three times," he said. "That's tommyrot. Everytime I step out on the course I'm going to do my damndest to win."

Ben also had some remarks about the course that had baffled him and 161 other crack golfers for most of three days.

"I sure wanted to bring her to her knees," he said. "I was disappointed when I didn't do it in the morning—he got a 71. I went out in the afternoon determined to do it." And he did—with a blistering three-under-par 67.

Hogan's final two rounds of 71 and 67 gave him a 72-hole total of 287, the same score with which he won at Philadelphia's Merion a year ago.

Had Ben Counted Out

He was five strokes back of Bobby Locke going into the final holes and was counted out. He was two strokes back of Locke and Jimmy Demaret after 54 holes.

Then came his amazing finish, for which he now owns the full copyright.

He beat the best golfers in the world—including British Open Champion Locke and Argentina's spectacular Roberto De Vicenzo.

Only two men broke Oakland Hills' par 70, Hogan with his 67, Clayton Heafner with a 69 which gave him second place at 289. Locke was third with 291 and others were strung out from there.

The latest tabulations in the nation wide poll give Stephens 61,844 votes for an edge of 4,643 over his starting rival, George Kell of Detroit July 10.

The first week of balloting showed Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals as No. 1 in popularity with a leading total vote of 76,254. Nellie Fox of the Chicago White Sox is second with 72,503, followed by Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn with 70,122 and Ted Williams of Boston with 69,186.

East Stroudsburg, Pa., (AP)—The Pennsylvania Scholastic Coaches Association clinic opens today at East Stroudsburg State Teachers' college.

The staff is headed by Charley Caldwell, Princeton university football coach, selected as 1950 "Coach of the Year." Others scheduled to attend and their subjects are Charley "Rip" Engle, Penn State, football; Everett Case, North Carolina State, basketball; Charley Speidel, Penn State, wrestling; and Tom Floyd, Franklin and Marshall, conditioning.

Clementon, N. J., June 18 (AP)—Don Sheff of the New Haven (Conn.) Swimming club won three trophies—including America's oldest swimming cup—at the season's first meet at Clementon yesterday.

His prize cup was the William P. Sackett trophy which he won by beating out 15 others in the 100-yard freestyle feature event. His time was 0:56.4. It was the fourth straight time Sheff has taken the award. Second and third went to Bruce Deforest, Quaker City, Philadelphia, SC, and James Bracken, Baltimore K of C.

Hunterstown increased its first place margin in the South Penn league by blanking Gettysburg 11-0 here Sunday and receiving a forfeit on Saturday.

Clyde Little, star hurler for the unbeaten league leaders, permitted but four hits as his team got credit for its seventh decision. Hunterstown collected 10 hits off Rich Miller and combined them with a number of misuses to win handily before the largest crowd of the local season.

Green Springs failed to field a team for its playoff of a postponed game at Hunterstown Saturday afternoon with the result the game was forfeited to Hunterstown after a long wait.

Lefty Murren fanned 20 batsmen and tossed a three-hitter as Brushtown blanked Bonneauville 9-0 on the winners' field. His strike-out total is believed to be a local league record. Murren, Moore and Roth each poled three hits for Brushtown. P. Sneeringer secured two of Bonneauville's safeties.

After five scoreless innings, Green Springs tallied three runs in the sixth and added two in the ninth to defeat Greenmount 5-1 on the losers' field. Five misuses by Greenmount greatly aided the Green Springs cause.

Granite went on a hitting and scoring spree to blast Barlow 16-8 on the Granite field. The winners pounded out 21 hits with W. Hankey securing four. D. Byers homered for the winners.

Out Of The Past

From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times
ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

In a preceding page will be found an account of the great fire at San Francisco, which has proved so destructive of property and life. More than twenty squares were burnt, and something like 1,000 houses and stores. Six persons were burned to death! A list of the losses is given—among which we observe the firm of Cooper & Co., $12,000. The whole loss is estimated at from 12 to 15 millions of dollars!—It is thought that many firms in New York will be ruined by this calamity, and that it may tend to hasten another monetary crisis in our commercial world.

Married: At Pittsburg, on the 17th inst., by the Rev. Wm. M. Paxton, Mr. John A. Renshaw, of Littlestown, Adams county, to Miss Mary Bailey, of Pittsburg.

On the 11th inst., by the Rev. G. W. Aughinbaugh, Mr. Jacob Shover, of this county, to Mrs. Mary L. McGaughy, of Franklin county.

On the 8th inst., by the Rev. J. Ublech, Mr. Elijah Koser, of Fayette county, Pa., to Miss Juliana Peters, of this county.

The Duke of Wellington is now in his 80th year, yet he danced at a grand ball which he gave to 1,500 guests, and saw the last of them retire at three o'clock in the morning.

The name of our townsman, Daniel M. Smyser, Esq., is favorably noticed in several papers, in connection with a nomination to the Supreme Bench, by the Whig convention, which is to assemble at Lancaster on Tuesday.

Great preparations are being made at Philadelphia for the celebration of the coming Fourth of July. There is to be a grand military parade, and a splendid display of fireworks.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Major H. S. Benner has been engaged as Clerk at the Gettysburg Springs Hotel for the summer. Mr. David Mundorff will have charge of the bar.

On Saturday the "Baltic" Base Ball Club, of York, visited Gettysburg to play a game with the "College" nine and were badly beaten—the score standing, College nine 26, Baltic 7. But six innings were played, in consequence of the rain.

Republican National Convention: Cincinnati, June 14, 1876—The Republican National Convention met at 11 o'clock in the Exposition Hall. The hall seats about 5,000, and the scene, when the delegates and spectators were admitted, was a grand one.

Governor E. D. Morgan, of New York, chairman of the National Committee, called the convention to order. Hon. Theodore M. Pomroy, of New York, was made temporary chairman.

Organization—The Committee on permanent organization reported the name of Hon. Edward McPherson, of Pennsylvania, for President, with a long list of Vice Presidents and Secretaries.

(The position of President had been tendered to Hon. Norton McMichael, of Philadelphia, but he declined, on account of the extreme heat and exacting duties of the position. Mr. McPherson was unanimously substituted.

The Third Day: The nomination of Governor Hayes, of Ohio, was greeted with wild applause.

After a few States had voted, it became evident that Mr. William Wheeler, of New York, was the favorite candidate for vice president, the balloting was suspended, and his nomination was made unanimous.

On Saturday evening, the committee appointed to notify Gov. Hayes of his nomination, visited Columbus, and Hon. Edward McPherson, chairman, addressed the Governor. Hayes, with much feeling, briefly notified the committee of his acceptance and his profound gratification for the confidence manifested in the action of the convention.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Next to that famous saying that all the world loves a lover I would place another and that one is: All the world loves a good sport. You note the evidence of this in every event where there is competition. You see it illustrated in a baseball game time and time again, as evidenced by the cheers that go up by the home team fans when a brilliant play is made by a competitor. It is proverbial on the part of baseball fans to want to do away with the umpire when a decision is made that is thought to be wrong. Good sportsmanship, however, is to accept the umpire's verdict. His eyes are concentrated upon the play. It's his whole business to be sure that he sees correctly. Therefore his word should be final, and it should always be taken in good grace. Baseball would not be the great game it is without its fine and conscientious umpires.

I was listening recently to the broadcast of the famous 500-mile race at the Indianapolis speed track. A newspaper man, I believe it was, explained that certain signals should be given during the race when passing another car, but that great care should be used not to be unfair, and the commentator made this statement: "Sportsmanship in the 500-mile race is standard equipment!"

Why shouldn't good sportsmanship be "standard equipment" with us all? We need it in our daily lives. Every contestant in an athletic event needs it. Were it not so universally accepted, I fear a large part of our interest in competitive events would be lost or absent. Good sportsmanship is always thrilling, no matter by whom exhibited.

I recall seeing the great Christy Mathewson, famous pitcher of the N. Y. Giants, come to a sudden halt in his pitching during a game, for he knew he wasn't right that day, and so voluntarily asked to be relieved. I recall the cheers as he left the pitcher's box. The baseball diamond is a great place for exhibiting good sportsmanship, and you almost always see it there. That's what makes it so popular and so inspiring a spectacle.

In the Spanish-American war, when a controversy arose between Admiral Sampson and Admiral Schley as to who deserved credit for sinking the Spanish fleet, Admiral Schley exclaimed: "There is glory enough for all!"

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Power of Thought."

Lovely Perennials Easy As Radishes To Grow

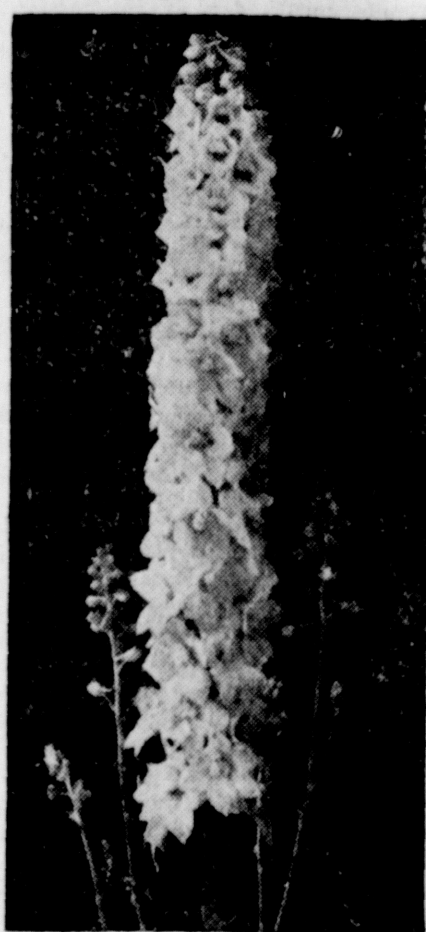

Every amateur gardener has within his reach hundreds of beautiful perennial flowers, with which he can plant a border which will bloom every year from spring to winter with a minimum of care. Such a border will distinguish any home grounds, and especially the small place, since small gardens excel in charm. If started now by sowing a few packets of perennial seed, in a spaded up plot of a few hundred square feet, your perennial border can be in full bloom next year.

The only plants you will have to buy, to provide a complete "succession of bloom" from May to October, are iris, peonies and chrysanthemums. The iris and peonies should be set out in August, the chrysanthemums next spring. But right away, you should sow seeds of these perennials:

Coreopsis, columbine, delphiniums, Newport pink sweet william, gailardia, double hollyhocks, linum perenne blue, pyrethrum, shasta daisies, dianthus plumarius, grenaadin carnations, and anemusa.

There are dozens of others which you can grow, but these will make a good start, and you will want to add a few each year. Sow the seed in rows, just like vegetables. Cover the seed with porous soil, in which a third sharp sand and a third humus have been mixed with soil. Keep the seed bed moist until they germinate.

Early spring weather is as good for perennials as for vegetables, and they will all grow vigorously in the cool weather. By July they may begin to crowd, and can be thinned out, the plants that are removed being set out in new rows where they have room to grow. Water these plants as you do the vegetable garden and fertilize them the same way. The same insecticides should be used if insects bother them, which is rarely the case.

By fall you will have hundreds of vigorous plants, heavily rooted, for a fraction of the amount they would cost in the market. In early October they should be moved to the border, artistically arranged, and the following summer you will enjoy their full beauty.

The experience you gain in growing your own plants will equip you to care for them and add to them, and your enjoyment will be all the greater, because you grew them.

FACTS ABOUT POISON IVY

Again the time of year returns when persons susceptible to the toxic effects of poison ivy must incur this common danger whenever they venture into areas likely to harbor this or one of its related species of plants. Therefore a few facts to dispel erroneous ideas about poisonous plant-life and to help readers rid their premises of such growths are timely.

Poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac, with many local names, are species belonging to the genus Rhus (pronounced to rhyme with "thus"). Poison ivy and poison-oak may be quite accurately classed as one and called poison ivy, because the differences are solely of leaf form and geographical distribution. Poison-oak is so called because its leaves resemble in some cases the leaves of certain varieties of oak. Otherwise it is just poison ivy and is not even remotely related or otherwise associated with oaks. For the benefit of botanically minded readers, poison ivy is listed as Rhus radicans; eastern poison-oak as Rhus toxicodendron, although several authorities call it Rhus quercifolia; and poison sumac as Rhus vernix. A species of poison-oak common to the Far West is Rhus diversiloba.

Poison sumac is seldom encountered in this part of the country except in swampy areas. Likelihood of suffering from contact with it is remote. Attention, therefore, may be turned to a discussion of the other two species.

Innumerable persons have cut down and destroyed valuable specimens of Boston Ivy and Virginia Creeper vines because they were unable to distinguish them from poison ivy. This is a needless mistake. Common poison ivy always bears its leaves in groups of three. Perhaps a better reminder on this point can be offered than the old saying, "Leaflets three, let it be." The Virginia Creeper is readily identified by its five-leaf groupings. Boston ivy may have many of its leaves grouped in clusters of three to a stem and thereby prove more difficult to recognize. However, not all its leaves will be found in threes. Occasionally single leaves appear.

Individual plants or patches of poison ivy may be killed out with any of the newer weed-killing chemicals, such as 2,4-D. Experiments conducted two years ago by the editor show dense growths destroyed by one application. To apply these chemicals without damage to desirable broad-leaved plants nearby, use a sprinking can instead of a sprayer. Of course, all containers contaminated by the chemical must be set aside or carefully washed before they are used for any other purpose.

Persons subject to poisoning from contact with poison ivy may gain at least partial immunity by coating exposed parts of the body with a neutralizing solution before going where the plant is likely to be found. One widely used mixture is composed of 1 part ferric chloride, 5 parts glycerin, 5 parts alcohol, and 10 parts water. A druggist should prepare this. All exposed skin should be vigorously washed with it. Strong hand soap soon after suspected exposure.

Campers and picnickers may obtain relief from the irritation during its early stages by applying a solution made by dissolving one 5-grain tablet of potassium permanganate in one quart of water. The skin stain may be removed later with lemon juice or it will gradually disappear in a few days. Too, it is advisable to have an immune person remove stray poison ivy plants from near camp and picnic sites.

START RUTABAGAS THIS WEEK

Rutabagas require 90 to 110 days from date of sowing seed to mature for winter storage. This fact, when measured by the calendar, means that seed should be sown no later than June 20 to bring roots to harvesting stage by early October.

Many home gardeners neglect to grow rutabagas because they consider them merely as yellow-fleshed turnips. And while this opinion is botanically true, rutabagas occupy a distinct place among vegetables. They differ from turnips not only in color, but many persons believe they are better flavored and superior to white-fleshed turnips in vitamin value. Of course, there are white-fleshed rutabagas and yellow-fleshed turnips, but both are rarely grown. Gardeners think of turnips as white-fleshed and rutabagas as yellow-fleshed.

Turnips may be seeded as late as early August in this latitude and still develop roots before cold weather. Most growers sow seed for the late turnip crop in late July. However, if the crop is to be harvested for greens, seed may be sown as late as mid-September.

Both rutabagas and turnips are cool-weather crops. The former is even more susceptible to injury by hot weather than turnips. Few gardeners south of the Potomac river attempt to grow rutabagas. Neither is injured by light frosts, therefore, they may actually reach maturity after the first light freezes of fall arrive.

Rutabagas should have a fertile, mellow, well drained loam, preferably following heavily fertilized earlier crops, such as potatoes. In this case no additional fertilizer is needed. The seed bed should be pulverized with particular care because rutabaga seed is small. Sowing may be done in rows or broadcasts. In regions where the cabbage root maggot attacks late turnips and rutabagas, row culture is advisable to permit combat by applying a camol solution along the rows. One ounce of seed sows a 600-foot row of 600 square feet broadcast. The seed should be covered shallow by a gentle raking.

Rutabagas seldom keeps well in basements where there is artificial heat. Even in moderately cool cellars they shrivel unless they are covered in sand or otherwise protected from moisture loss. Commercial gardeners send rutabagas to winter markets coated with paraffin. These withstand considerable exposure to high temperatures and dry air without serious deterioration. Perhaps the home gardener should practice this method of protection where rutabagas must be stored where they are likely to shrivel. The cleaned, topped roots are merely dipped into melted paraffin.

By far the safer and less expensive method of storing the roots for all-winter use or marketing is to bury them in a well drained outdoor pit. The topped roots may be piled in a conical heap on a liberal layer of straw, hay or other dry vegetation and covered with the same kind of dry litter. A light coating of soil is then applied, deepened later to prevent freezing. A small supply of roots should be kept in the cellar or basement to bridge periods of inclement weather when removal from the mound would be difficult. Turnips should be stored in a similar manner, even in the same mound with rutabagas.

WHY NOT GROW KOHLRABI?

American vegetable growers are not adventurers when it comes to adopting vegetables which their fathers did not grow. For examples, broccoli was popular in Europe for two or three centuries before its goodness won it a place in our gardens. Salsify is another excellent vegetable, hardy and tasty, yet it is barred at perhaps three-fourths of our garden gates. And the subject of this discussion—kohlrabi—is another of those deserving but widely rejected vegetables.

As its name indicates, kohlrabi is a member of the cabbage group. From a botanical standpoint it is the most interesting of this genus. And judged by its texture and flavor, it is near the top of the cabbage group in edible merits. In form and habit it is nearer the cabbage although it resembles the turnip. Perhaps a more accurate comparison would be to describe it as a turnip produced on a cabbage stalk. The fleshy stem is not unlike cauliflower in texture and taste.

Like most other crucifers, kohlrabi does best in cool weather. This means that it should be emphasized in the extra early and late garden plans. From 55 to 65 days are required from date of sowing seed to bring this vegetable to edible size. Most experienced growers sow seed under glass about six weeks before the last hard frost to start the early crop. Plants are moved to their growing place in late April or early May in the same manner as cabbage and other crucifers are transplanted. The main idea is to develop roots for table use before hot, dry weather arrives.

Seed for the late crop should be sown in the open in late June or early July. The editor has grown high quality kohlrabi seeded as late as July 25. But the safer final date is around July 1 to 10 in this latitude. Under both spring and late summer culture the fact should be kept in mind that kohlrabi must be harvested and eaten when it is young, when the turnip-like stem growth is about the size of a baseball. To allow this vegetable to attain maturity means tough, poorly flavored crops.

Seed should be drilled in rows 16 to 20 inches wide for hand tillage and covered no deeper than one-half inch. Later plants should be thinned to stand about 6 to 8 inches apart in the row. If the soil is dry at seeding time, it should be firmed over the seed and the row kept moist until seed germinates. This precaution greatly hastens growth in dry weather. Too, the rows should be irrigated when moisture is needed.

Like turnips, parsnips, carrots and several other late vegetables, kohlrabi requires no additional fertilizer when following early potatoes and other heavily fertilized vegetables. Of course, the soil should be worked into a fine, mellow seed bed.

The peak of kohlrabi goodness is not known unless plants are hurried along and harvested for immediate consumption before the edible part begins to grow woody. Many housewives utilize the leaves in the same manner that collards and turnip greens are prepared.

If the green cabbage aphid attacks the plants at any stage, kill the pest off at once with Black Leaf 40 as a spray in soapy water. To avoid the dangers of soil-borne diseases it is advisable to rotate kohlrabi so that it follows no other members of the cabbage group.

Reserve Decision In Remington Case

New York, June 16 (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals has reserved decision on William W. Remington's appeal of his perjury conviction for falsely telling a federal grand jury he never was a Communist.

Remington, former Commerce department economist, argues his prosecution was "inspired by public and political clamor and by private malice."

Attorney William C. Chanler argued Remington's plea yesterday before the Appeals court.

Presiding Judge Thomas W. Swan and his associates, Judges Learned Hand and Augustus N. Hand, said they would give their written decision in several weeks.

Remington was sentenced earlier this year to five years in prison and a $2,000 fine. He is free in $7,000 bail, pending the outcome of his appeal.

PITTSBURGH JUDGE DIES

Pittsburgh, June 18 (AP)—President Judge Frank Patterson, 74, of the Allegheny county Common Pleas court, died early Saturday. Judge Patterson was stricken by a heart attack in his chambers two days ago. He suffered another attack Friday at Pittsburgh hospital.

Robert and Miriam Chrimer Claybaugh, Mt. Pleasant township, sold to F. C. and Ludie J. Martin, same place, a property in that township.

Lillian Riddlemoser, Franklin township, sold to S. Luther Baltzley, Gettysburg, a property in McKnightstown.

HOME POLICIES ARE ATTACKED BY M'ARTHUR

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, June 18 (AP)—General MacArthur is now up to his neck in politics, although perhaps not on his own behalf.

He jumped in Saturday at Fort Worth when he made a full-scale attack on the Truman administration for the way it operates at home.

He had returned to this country, after an absence of 12 years, as a critic of the Truman administration's foreign policy.

But now he has launched out as a critic of the administration's handling of domestic affairs, too.

MacArthur made a whirlwind speaking trip through six Texas cities last week, defending and urging in five of them his views on how to win in Korea.

But in Fort Worth he never once spoke of Korea or foreign problems. He spoke there only of events at home.

Follows Old Line
At Fort Worth MacArthur, who has been mentioned as a possible Republican candidate for president, followed the favorite line taken by many Republican critics of the administration.

He struck at what he called the "internal subversion and corruption and detailed regimentation over our daily life... the drift away from our competitive system of free enterprise... the drift upward in the cost of bureaucracy... the drift toward socialism... the tax burden..."

Senator Kerr, Oklahoma Democrat, reacted with this statement on MacArthur: "He's running for president as hard as he knows how. The Mac-kado rides again."

MacArthur himself, almost at the moment he put foot on American soil in San Francisco last April when returning to talk to Congress, said: "I have no political aspirations whatsoever."

And to a reporter who asked him last week in Texas if he would seek the presidency, MacArthur said, "No."

Great Humiliation
But there is a certain amount of elasticity in both statements for in neither of them did MacArthur say he wouldn't accept the Republican presidential nomination if it's offered to him.

But the Truman administration, when it stripped him of all his commands, inflicted upon him one of the greatest humiliations ever dealt a general in military history.

And now that MacArthur has attacked the administration in both the foreign and domestic fields, it is clear his feeling against the administration is intense in all directions.

So even if he is never rewarded with the Republican nomination, it undoubtedly will be a satisfaction to him if he can help bring about the administration's defeat in the 1952 elections.

CZECHS ADMIT JET FIGHTERS LANDED THERE

London, June 18 (AP)—The Czechoslovak government confirmed Saturday that two missing United States Air Force jet fighters landed in Czechoslovakia, dispatches from Prague said.

The government said the pilots—an American and a Norwegian—were "well and happy."

The planes, based in Germany, have been missing since June 8.

The Prague reports said Czech Foreign Minister Vilam Siroky gave the first official news of the missing planes to U. S. Ambassador Ellis Briggs yesterday. Siroky reportedly told Briggs that the Czech government is still investigating the affair.

There was no indication where in Czechoslovakia the planes had landed or why.

One Norwegian
The pilots were listed by U. S. officials in Germany as 1st Lieut. Luther G. Rohland, an American, and 1st Lieut. Bjornen Johansen of Norway. Norwegian authorities said Johansen was training with the U. S. Air Force in Germany.

No further identification was given.

The planes—P-84 Thunderjets—were attached to the 86th Fighter-bomber Wing at Giebelstadt, Bavaria. They were armed with the usual complement of guns.

The U. S. Air Force abandoned the search for the planes June 11 and said it feared they had crashed somewhere behind the Iron curtain. The disappearance was reported to the Soviet air control in the Russian sector of Berlin.

U. S. Asks for Planes
Reports from Prague said the U. S. ambassador there asked the Czech government to investigate last Wednesday.

Prague dispatches said it was understood that Briggs had asked for Rohland's release and the return of the two jets. Embassy officials in Prague declined to discuss what action the Czech government might take.

Helge Akre, Norwegian charge d'affaires, was understood to have made representations for the release of Johansen, but was informed that circumstances of the planes' landing were still being investigated.

over the hands with an embroidered peplum, full skirt and organy train. Her finger tip length veil was of illusion net, with a white organy bonnet edged in seed pearls, having a flower trim. The bride's jewelry consisted of a gold cross necklace with a diamond in the center, a gift of the bridegroom, and a pair of diamond earrings. She carried a colonial bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a white organy gown with a high neckline and short sleeves, featuring a lilac sash with a underskirt of the same color. Her headdress was of mixed summer flowers and net. She carried a colonial bouquet of larkspur and corn flowers. The bridesmaids wore matching organy gowns with fitted embroidered tops, and three quarter length sleeves, over green underskirts. They wore white organy picture hats and carried colonial bouquets of larkspur and corn flowers. The flower girls strewed summer flowers, and they wore white organy dresses with headbands of larkspur and corn flowers. The men wore the usual summer formal attire.

Organ Recital
Prior to the ceremony a 15-minute organ recital was presented by Miss Shirley Gobrecht, Hanover, the church organist. Miss Hedwig Moosmann, Maywood, N. J., college friend of the bride, sang "Ich Liebe Dich" (I Love Thee), and "Tell Me Why." Charles Emery, Pottstown, a member of the college quartet, "The Crystal Four," of which the bridegroom was also a member, sang "Because," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer." Miss Gobrecht played the traditional wedding marches and was also accompanist for the soloists.

The church sanctuary was beautifully decorated with ivy around the chancel rail and at the pews and each of the windows. The altar vases were filled with white delphinium.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the social room of the church with approximately 200 guests in attendance. A color scheme of lilac and green was carried out in the decorations of the room. A three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom standing under a trellis of lilies of the valley formed the centerpiece of the serving table. Cut flowers and candles comprised the decorations of the bride's table.

RE-ELECT YODER

in their reports in time for the annual compilation.

Total enrollment in the Sunday schools was listed as 13,237, the number of officers and teachers at 1,456, an increase of 43 over the previous years.

Total church membership was listed as 16,208, a decrease of 156. Fifty-seven churches now cooperate in or sponsor vacation church schools, an increase of eight over the previous year, the report showed.

Ira C. Sassaman, associate secretary of the Pennsylvania Council of Christian Education, Harrisburg, listed five needs for young people during a talk given at the afternoon session. The five needs, he said, are "conviction of the certainty of Christ in today's uncertainty; a spiritual foundation on which to build a Christian community and a Christian world; an effective Christian ministry for youth before they leave home, while they are away and when they return, and a vital program for Christian Youth Evangelism." He listed the United Christian Youth Movement, with 1,000,000 members as providing such a program.

Meckley Speaks
At the evening service Claude O. Meckley, postmaster at Hanover, speaking on "The Sword of God and You" asserted: "The sword of God is the word of God, the Bible which is the plumbline God will use when the day of judgment comes." Noting that many refuse to help in Sunday school work, Meckley added, "Their refusal is a sin for God does not will that our talents be wasted."

President Yoder announced that the annual convention of the state Sunday school organization will be held October 9 to 11 at Altoona.

One hundred and thirty-nine delegates from 37 Sunday schools attended the convention.

SCHOOL BOARDS HAMPERED BY PENDING BILLS

Harrisburg, June 18 (AP)—Legislative indecision on proposed teacher salary increases is causing confusion in many state school districts over preparation of school budgets.

The teacher pay bills, now resting in the Senate Education committee, would grant public school teachers an immediate $400 salary increase.

The bills, already passed by the House, would also boost state school subsidies to local school districts by an estimated $36,000,000 the next two years.

The bills were held up in the Senate after passing the House because of the Senate deadlock over the question of new taxes. Sen. Paul Wagner (R-Schuylkill), chairman of the Senate Education committee, said the bills will be held up until "we find out what state money is available for distribution to schools."

This delay is making it difficult for local school districts to prepare their school budgets for the next year. If the bills should pass it will affect their salary schedules as well as state aid estimates.

J. Hugh Henderson, an advisor in the Department of Public Instruction's school business section, said many schools are going ahead with preparation of their budgets with intentions of later revisions should the teacher salary increase plan be put into law.

He said however state law fixes no deadline for adoption of school budgets and any schools desiring to hold off until the Legislature acts may do so.

Henderson noted also that the proposed legislation specifically allows revision of local budgets in cases where they are already adopted. The legislation also permits school districts to borrow money on a temporary basis to meet any salary increase costs necessary under the proposed teacher pay boost.

Cumberland, Md., June 18 (AP)—Twenty-five-year-old Eugene Gilsan, preparing to set off a dynamite charge at a quarry near here, was seriously injured Thursday when a bolt of lightning striking nearby exploded the charge into his face. His condition is serious.

EARMARKING SPECIAL LEVY IS PROPOSED

Harrisburg, June 18 (AP)—A top Senate leader said today the General Assembly could break its income tax deadlock by earmarking the levy specifically for education and for paying off the soldiers' bonus.

Sen. Paul L. Wagner (R-Schuylkill) proposed this as the legislature returned after a week's recess.

"Putting a tag line on the income tax ought to meet with approval by everyone concerned about the tax," Wagner asserted.

His was the latest solution suggested for ending the tax dilemma which has sharply split Republican ranks in the state Senate.

Marathon Conference
Opposing Republican Senate factions held a marathon 27-hour conference here over the week-end in an unsuccessful effort to reconcile their tax differences. A new try was scheduled for today.

The stalemate developed in April after the House passed Gov. John S. Fine's proposed $119,000,000 flat income tax on one-half of one percent by a narrow margin after a second vote.

The measure immediately ran into a roadblock in the Senate when 11 of the 20 Senate Republicans—enough to kill it—took a stand against the measure.

Called "Necessary"
Fine insists the income levy is necessary to fill a multi-million dollar gap in his $1,220,000,000 budget for the next two years. Opponents of the tax declare, however, that pruning of the budget would eliminate any need for the tax.

Sen. Samuel B. Wolfe (R-Union) came up over the week-end with another idea for ending the deadlock. He suggested a flat five percent cut in Fine's budget. He said this would save between 40 to 50 million dollars and eliminate the need for more taxes.

Complicating the state's finances is a $46,000,000 teacher salary increase bill passed by the House and now before the Senate for study. No provision is made in Fine's budget for this extra cost.

Asks Earmarking
Wagner said his proposal to earmark the income tax for education and the soldiers' bonus, would solve two of the state's biggest expenditures.

The $415,000,000 bonus paid to Pennsylvania veterans of World War II is costing the state about $60,000,000 every two years to amortize, while education accounts for almost one-third of the total state budget or an outlay of about $230,000,000 over a like period.

"If the income tax were tied specifically to these two items, it should eliminate the fear of opponents of the tax that it would go to an unnecessary activity," Wagner said.

Walker Scoffs Report
Sen. John M. Walker (R-Allentown), Senate Republican leader, and a strong opponent of the income tax, already has indicated he might go for a proposal such as suggested by Wagner.

Walker said over the week-end that if the state wants to set teacher salary rates it should earmark a specific tax to help pay the costs. He suggested a three or four per cent sales tax.

The week-end tax-budget conference was called with the hope that it would produce an agreement on finances, permitting the legislature to adjourn by June 30. Failure to solve the tax dilemma has raised the prospect of a summer-long session, setting a new record in length. The 1941 Assembly adjourned July 15, establishing itself as the second longest session since 1842.

Walker meanwhile brushed aside week-end reports that the administration is seeking his resignation as Senate Republican floor leader because of his views against the income tax. "We are all very good friends and the rumors have been embarrassing to all of us. Even if there is a sincere difference of opinion over legislation, there is nothing but continued friendly relationships in the Republican caucus," Walker said.

Littlestown PROMOTION DAY TO BE OBSERVED

Promotion Day will be celebrated next Sunday morning at Redeemer's Evangelical and Reformed church, as announced by the pastor, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, at the worship service on Sunday morning. Yesterday the Mothers' class and the Nursery class were moved into the church social hall, which has been recently equipped for this purpose.

At the Sunday service the Rev. Mr. Reynolds spoke on the subject, "The Simple Truth." A special anthem was sung by the choir, accompanied by Miss Shirley Gobrecht, church organist. The altar vases were filled with white delphinium, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Scholl, who were united in marriage in the church sanctuary on Saturday afternoon. The bulletins for the worship service were given in memory of Mrs. Annie K. Crouse by Mr. and Mrs. C. Woodrow Crouse.

The Senior choir of Redeemer's church will have its regular rehearsal on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Senate had a series of controversial bills on tap for consideration today.

In the Senate, debate is scheduled on a bill proposing to increase the truck weight limit in Pennsylvania from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds for commonly used trucks. Similar legislation has been defeated in past sessions after stormy battles.

Backers of a House-passed bill setting up a fair employment practices commission in Pennsylvania served notice over the week-end they will seek to pry the measure loose from the Senate judiciary committee where it is now resting. The disputed bill, which would set up a three-man commission to combat discrimination in race, creed or color, was the subject of a hot debate before it passed the House.

Jersey Shore Girl Is Laurel Queen

Wellsboro, Pa., June 18 (AP)—Princess Sherrille Verna Hiller of Jersey Shore was picked from 60 other teen-age beauties Friday night to reign a queen of Pennsylvania's 10 annual Laurel festival.

Sherrille was crowned by Lt. Gov. Lloyd H. Wood as a climax to the two-day festival. Runner-up was Louise Carol Justin of Mt. Carmel. Earlier in the day a mile-long street parade attracted thousands of spectators. A float sponsored by the Towanda Chamber of Commerce was judged the most beautiful. Twenty high school bands marched in the parade. The Laurel festival is named for Pennsylvania's official flower.

Fixing Cars or Trucks Isn't Just Labor IT'S APPLIED ENGINEERING!

The ability and know-how of our boys is made fully effective by providing them with top-notch equipment. Mechanical jobs are supposed to be alike—at least the same job is supposed to be always the same. But is it? It is according to the flat rate books, but how about the rusted nut, the stripped thread, or perhaps the clearance between radiator and engine that enables you to remove the pump on one car and not on another? Yes, mechanical jobs are supposed to be the same... but they never are.

We feel we have the best mechanics obtainable and that they are capable of coping with any job on any car. No job too large or small.
